Washington Territory- Another Attempted Murder. Yesterday, at about 1 o'clock p. m., was perpetratee another diabolical attempt at murder, this time in our own town (Steila-coon), in the presence of several wilnesses One of our osmisterling and incliensive citizens, Mr. Andrew F., Byrd, on this occasion was the victim. At about the hour indicated, Mr. Byrd intered the post office on business, and had barely time to scat himself before J. M. Bates, with whom he had some weeks J.-M. Bates, with whom he had some weeks previously had a slight controversy respecting some lost cattle; opened the door, stepped over the thre-hold, and deliberately shot him; the ball entering the side and remaining in the body. The wounded man was immediately removed to Galliher's hotel, and Bates at once taken into custody, declaring that he wanted to kill another man (Dr. Spinning), and then he would be ready to explate his crimes on the gallows. Bates is now in jail awaiting the result of the would

At the time of his removal, it was gener-At the time of his removal, it was generally supposed the shot would prove fatal, and that Mr. Byrd could not survive it more than one or two hours. Currency Terms. The origin of the word sterling has been explained as follows in a correspondence of the N. Y. Transcript:

"Your correspondent refers to the pound sterling or casterling, which word. I believe, is commonly spelled esterling." Some of your readers may not be aware of the origin of the word sterling, about which antiquarians have doubted. The word cesterlings may be found in Spelman's glossary. The word was first applied to English, peunics, in the reign of Edward. I, about the year 1297. Henry, in his life of G. B., vol. vi, page 297, London, 1814, says.—In the course of this period, the silver penny is sometimes called an esterling or sterling; and good money in general is sometimes called esterling or sterling money.' It is unnecessary to mention the various conjectures of antiquarians about the origin and meaning of this appellation. The most probable averages are series can be considered to the control of the probable average considered to the control of the course of the probable or antiquarians about the origin and meaning of this appellation. The most probable averages can be considered to the course of the course of the course of the probable of the probable of the course of the c the N. Y. Transcript : meaning of this appellation. The most pro-pable meaning seems to be this: That some artists from Germany, who were called ester-lings from the situation of their country, had been employed in fabricating our money, which consisted chiefly of silver pennies, and that from them the penny was called an esterling, and our money esterling or sterling money.

I used to be puzzled to know why a certain coin was called a milled dollar. Antoine Brucher, a Frenchman invented the mill for bruener, a Freedman invented the mill for making money, and money was first struck with it in 1553. It was brought into England by Philip Mestzel, and Elizabeth had milled money struck in England in 1652. It was used in France till 1485, and in England (ill 1559) because the till 1572, but gave place to the cheaper ex-pedient of the 'hammer.' which in 1617 gave place to the engine of Belancier, which was place to the engine of Belancier, which was merged in the great improvements of Boulton and Watt, at Soho, in 1788. In 1811 the art was brought to very great perfection at the mint in London. One of the most interest, ing objects, at the present day, in Philadelphia, is the whole process of coinage, from first to last, from the crude California snuff, as it enters the melting pot, till it verifies the proverb and taketh the wings of an cagle and flieth away.

"The dollar mark (8) is derived from the use of the old Spanish nillar dollar which was of very general circulation and known value; two pillars enclosed within an S became the cipher for a Spanish dollar.' PRESIDENT DAVIS.—The Richmond correspondent of the Times says: "It seems to me that half an hour in Richmond would satisfy the most rabid Unionist of his own infatuation—but if that half hour was past in the sociebut if that half hour was past in the society of President Davis, and any faith of the restoration of the Union nominally survived, the only inference would be that the Unionist was either knave or fool. In a former letter from the North I expressed an opinion that Mr. Davis was the ablest living American; that impression is more than confirmed by intercourse with him. The President is one of those calm, firm, undemonstrative men, inclining to reticence, but, if interested, easily led on to animated conversation, who belong to a type which, strange to say, seems to abound in the South, and is at variance with the imputed impulsiveness of these children of the sun. In many interviews with Northern men of mark, it has never been my fortune to encounter one whose mind was not tune to encounter one whose mind was not made in the same mould with that of his felmade in the same mould with that of his fellows, who had not travelled along the same macadamised road of learning along which, though pursuing it to different lengths, the 20,000,000 of the North undeviatingly advance. An interview with President Davis reveals to you an American with striking originality, whose mind has made its own road as it journeyed, who has thoughtfully profited by his own experiences, and got beyond the set phrases and the primers which circumscribe vigor and reach of thought. Each word is slow, weighty, and luminous, the countenance and voice agreeable and convincing, the mouth one of the firmest that ever were set in mortal head. The President flooks spare and worn, but speaks cheeffully looks spare and worn, but speaks cheerfully of his health. There is nothing to justify the repeated allegations of Northern papers that he is physically at his last gasp."

Working our Copper Mines

Though our claims as a gold-producing country have been the chief means of drawing attention to these Colonies, and attracting hither a large portion of our present population, yet we must accustom ourselves not to rely solely upon our advantages in that respect. Not that there is the slightest probability of there being any decrease in the yield of our gold fields for many years to come-for we may confident'y expect the very contrary-but, as we all know, it is necessary to provide the means of inducing the surplus of those who come here to settle down to some less exciting mode of gaining a livelihood than gold-seeking. A gold-min ing population is always fluctuating, while we want a permanent one. How, then, can we secure this object? California has effected it in a great measure through her splendid agricultural capabilities and their adjuncts. It may be doubted whether we shall ever be pre-eminently distinguished in that respect it will be sufficient if we are always able to supply the home wants of an extensive mining and manufacturing population. We must, therefore, while not neglecting agriculture, look to the development of as many other of our resources as possible. That they are numerous, we are all aware. That they are capable of employing always a large portion of our population, and would serve as a good basis for extending our foreign commerce, is equally evident. in these columns frequently alluded to many of them-not more, however, than the subject deserves-but we cannot help again drawing public attention to the necessity there exists for immediately doing something towards the development of our copper-mining interests Whether we consider the matter in view of its affording employment for a large numbe of men, attracting hither capital, or promising an important article of export, the great ad vantage we would derive from the active prosecution of this branch of industry must be apparent upon the slightest examination. Our neighbors in California are evidently of this opinion, and determined to avail themserves to the utmost of the benefits to be derived from the trade. This year the item of copper has constituted a large proportion of the value of these exports to the east; although they have as yet shipped from but

As to the profitable nature of the trade, we can only approximate to a knowledge of it. but to use the words of a writer in the Bulletin, " we are led to infer from the peculiar reticence of the leading shipper and the constant swelling of the exports, that the trade has advantages, the knowledge of which for obvious reasons, is withheld." From the same paper we learn that the shipment of copper ore from the State, according to the Custom House returns, for the past year, amounted to alout 3,660 tons, which at $100 per ton, would be worth $366,000. The bulk of this ore was from the Calaveras county mines, whence it cost some $6 per ton freight to lay it down at San Francisco. The other expenses are :- ore mined, and at pits mouth, $2 50 per ton; sacks, commissions, assays and sundry expenses of shipments, &c , $8; adding freight gives when shipped to Bostor a total cost of $26 50 per ton; or if sent to Swansea, $28 50. The value of the ores in Boston is said to be $6 per ton for every one per cent. of metal they contain; twenty per cent. ore would thus be worth $120 per ton, which, as can easily be seen, would leave a large margin for profits. To give an idea of the amount of wealth contained in one of these copper mines, it is estimated that the value of the ore in the west half of the Union Company's claim at Copperopolis, from the surface to the bottom of the shafts, as far as carried in last November amounted to $500,000. These few facts show the importance of this branch of industry in California and should be sufficien to stimulate us to make every exertion to rean similar advantages by working this mineral in these Colonies. There is no lack of ground to commence upon, were the canital forthcoming. Ores have for some time been discovered, which if worked, would pay handsome profits, as they could from their position be shipped with scarcely any trouble. The whole country, moreover, is full of indications of the abundance of this valuable metal. Now when we consider tha apart from the profits that might be derived from having the mines worked in our midst. there would be a never failing article of export upon which European vessels could always depend for their return cargo, we at VICTORIA THEATRE. once perceive that nothing could conduce more to attract shipping to our port than the extensive prosecution of this branch of mining interest. But we cannot do it with ou present capital. That is little enough for our present wants. We must therefore obtain the necessary funds for this purpose from abroad. No better field than this exists for the investment of English capital. It has been tried in Chile, in Australia, and elsewhere, and has always been found to pay well. Attention therefore, requires only to be directed to our demands in this respect to cause English capitalists to make invest ments in one of their own colonies. Here the field is illimitable, not only for mining but for smelting and manufacturing, as we have wood, coal, fire, brick, so necessary for these purposes, in abundance. Who, then, will initiate this most necessary movement?

With regard to this item, the Chairman remarked that it was to be very much regretted that the people of Victoria should be compelled to support two assessors to perform identical duties. He objected to the way in which the City Council were hunting up and sending over patients. If they turned people out of their own dwellings who had the small pox, the Corporation should provide a place to send them The item passed, when the committee rose ar

EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST-Sir: I notice in your impression of to day that a man repre-senting himself as the carpenter of my ship, is charged before the Police Magistrate with having committed theft. Allow me to ob-serve that my carpenter has not left the ship since she came into port, and that a more honorable man never walked the deck of a ship. His name is John Aitken, and he has been with me for the last nine years; and I trust you will give a place in your columns to vindicate the character and honesty of a good and wor thy man.

As there is a general impression here, as well as in San Francisco, that the Robert Lowe and the Tynemouth are the property of Americans, I wish to state, through your col-umns, that both vessels are owned and sailed by Mr. Lindsay, and, as far as I know, he has no intention of disposing of them.

I also wish to correct a misstatement which has appeared in the papers of this city, to the effect that if the Robert Lowe had been a week longer at sea she would have been short of provisions. I do not know whether the of provisions. . I do not know whether the press intended to pay me a compliment or not, as to the "close shave" I had made according to the statement; but I do know that if I had been three months longer at sea, I could have maintained every one on board on a full ration. With reference to the ast paragraph in the Captain's letter, we bt whatever that he had proviions on Loard his ship to do a much longer period than he was at sea on his last voyage -but he will himself admit that if the time ad been protracted another week, he would have had to draw upon the ample supply of provisions laid in to serve the crew for a lengthened voyage, to meet the requirements of the passengers.—Ep. ATTEMET TO MURDER.—The Mountaineer (Oregon) says that on the night of the 14th inst., at 9 o'clock, an attempt was made to murder Mr. Win. Nix, a citizen of Dalles. It appears that Mr. Nix was going into Rein ing's Oyster Salson, when he was assaulted by a man, whom he did not recognize, with a stone of about two pounds weight sung in a pocket handkerchief. The force of the blow jerked the handlerchief out of the villain's hand, and he at once fled, leaving his hart, handkerchief and the death-dealing hat, handkerchief and the death-dealing weapon behind him. Mr. Nix received a heavy blow from the stone on the head, but is not dangerously injured. Suspicion had not taken any particular direction.

Medicine in the world for Billiousness and Indicestion. In all cases of deranged stomach, deter nination of blood to the head, bile, sick headache liver and stomach complaints, there is no medicin known that will give such immediate relief as these senowned Pills; young and old, rich or poor, patronise them, and so many cures are effected by hoir use, that their praise is sounded from themperate climate to the frigid zone; in truth, per one who travol consider them a necessary requisite. During the loverland journey to India, the load becomes overheated, the liver torpid, the kin covered with a prickly heat, and the whole yestem languid and exhausted. Nothing we soor gives relief as Holloway's Pills.

BILLIOUS AFFECTIONS—Are speedily removed by the use of Dr. Jayne's Sanative Pills. The test of 30 years' use has proved them superior to all ather remedies for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended. In their action they are mild and certain, and may be taken at any time without risk from exposure, and on this account they are invaluable to the miner, as they much taken without necessitating a discontinuance of work, even though the latter should be in the winter. ter.

Mike brought them up, and quick as thought,
Our friend the miur a new suit had bought,
Paid down his money, then, looking in the glass,
His compliments to Mike he thus did pass:
